

At the Department of Neurology, University of Heidelberg, in the area "stroke studies" an additional position is available for a

Study Nurse f/m

The two-year fixed-term position starts on 1st February 2009, and may be prolonged afterwards.

Job description:

You will support the study physicians in the professional execution of clinical studies, attend study meetings, and set up audits as well as start-up visits.

Your qualification:

You have completed your education as a nurse or an alternative assistant for healthcare professionals. Ideally, you are experienced in the field of clinical studies and are familiar with national and international regulations. Adequate knowledge in IT is required as well as the ability to work independently and good problem-solving skills. Above all, our team is looking for a confident and communicative person, well trained in spoken and written English.

Our offer:

We offer versatile and interesting work at a well-equipped modern workplace in a competent, collegial environment with the chance to develop many international contacts. Attendance of internal and external training events is desired and supported. The Department of Neurology in Heidelberg is in charge of multiple international studies for stroke (acute and secondary prevention).

Salary is according to TV-UK.

For additional information you may contact Prof. Werner Hacke's secretary:
Phone: 06221-56-8211, e-mail: neurologie@med.uni-heidelberg.de.

Your application:

Please send your detailed application within two weeks of release of this advertisement to:
Prof. Werner Hacke's secretary. E-mail is welcome: neurologie@med.uni-heidelberg.de
Tel. 06221-56-8211.

*With equal personal and professional competence, we favour handicapped individuals.
Women are in particular encouraged to apply.*